Elder Terrero

The quality of the feedback we received was very good. The other people's names were (on Zoom): A Z, Rey Johnson and Zach Sheplak.

They mentioned that they really liked our visualization and said that our decision to use a dataset that was already pretty organized was smart. They expressed interest in seeing what information our visualization would convey when it's done. They said that our data set was very interesting.

They said that our visualization would make exploring the data much easier, more fun, and more intuitive.

Their feedback was definitely fair and definitely helpful.
